"THANK GOD, I'M NOT MAN WHO MAKES NO ENEMIES," STATES DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Oil Workers' Union Would Extend Strike

BY AVA M. ROCHLEN.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ON BOARD SANTA FE-CALIFORNIA LIMITED, FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Oct. 2.—"Thank God, I'm not the kind of a District Attorney who makes no enemies."

With his eyes blazing, his famous rebellious lock of hair swaying across his face as in days of old and with fight in every fiber of his body, Dist.-Atty. Woolwine, who is speeding homeward to face the accusations returned against him by the Los Angeles county grand jury, late tonight gave an indication of what is in his heart and mind and what his accusers are to expect of him when he gets home.

And Thomas E. Woolwine, the fighting District Attorney, veteran of many political and legal fights, is certainly going home to fight.

only weapon at their command. While the full text of the telegram, which was signed by Walter Tarrow, adviser to the oil workers' union, is not published, it is certain that the message also urged the government to inter-

"I am the sworn enemy of all crooked criminals," declared Attorney General George L. Wallace, "and I am prosecuting unscrupulous politicians, every murderer, cut-throat and all confidence men in the State of California," he roared as his clenched fist cut swishing paths in the air as he spoke; it is such the men he termed his enemies.

It was the same old Thomas Lee courtroom in the Los Angeles County Jail, the Los Angeles County, new hurt and indignant as he stood in his drawing-room on the California Institution of Justice gave for the first time his side of the case, and from his looks his hearers could easily tell that as he took up some of the more important accusations and when he spoke through he paid his respects to all.

"My past life in the community is my best defense," one needs," he said.

RECKONING COMING.

That Mr. Woolwine will not neglect to state to the person who made statements against Los Angeles County grand jury, he indicated will have another criminal on his hands.

"I am the sworn enemy," he reminded, "of every crook and criminal, every cut-throat, every murderer, every confidence man, every unscrupulous politician, every murderer, cut-throat, and every confidence man in the State of California. I am also hated by the friends of these gangsters. After a strenuous fight with the Los Angeles County grand jury, I am now a leading and exceedingly important official business connected with one of the bunko and confidence men who were in the murder case, and while seeking a few days' rest from nerve-racking work, I am now being hounded by one of the most dastardly and unscrupulous conspirators to assassinate me."

among my bitter enemies, discharged attorneys, and all I prosecuted for felonies, and from other equally tainted sources. The committee had no power to call a witness, thus making these lies and perjuries, as they thought, safe from prosecution for the committee convened in the office of Bud Hill, who hates me because I sought in the courts to determine whether or not the office of County Counsel was a legal one, to add to the unspeakable iniquity and injustice of the wicked politician and to show that these dastardly statements of my good name made by the Los Angeles County grand jury were the things that were said about me or my office in these statements. I was not even a member of my force ever asked to explain anything in connection with these lies and falsehoods, and the first that I heard of these proceedings is a telegram from my office stating that the Los Angeles County grand jury had taken up the case of that man of integrity and high purpose, who value their good name, retain their good name, and retain their good name.

SCORES JOHNSON.

"It might be better illuminating to relate that J. Johnson of this Los Angeles County grand jury sought to become a night guard at the District Attorney's office, and was refused admission, and I placed there for the reason that I have no confidence in him. I think that the Los Angeles County grand jury, long before this malicious proceeding, told a person in whom I have no confidence that he would give me $1000 to get me. I confronted him with that statement and he refused to do so. I think that he lied. My long life in this community certainly should make it unnecessary for me to be paid any money for doing so. WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Borah bill to exempt American coastwise shipping from payment of Panama Canal tolls involving the grave question of the tolls on the coastwise vessels, is likely to be passed by the Senate on October 10, unless from the House the program.

Out of sixty-seven houses whose attitude was canvassed today, thirty-five gave their vote for the bill, thirteen said they will vote against it, and twenty-one were noncommittal. On the assumption of no change of views, the bill is a part of some of the noncommittal and absentees the roll would stand: thirty for the bill, thirteen against it and seventeen noncommittal, with sixteen absentees un-

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Denis O'Brien today Boston, celebrated his twenty-fifth birthday by getting into a fight, a fight going to the hospital, getting arrested, and ending on a memorable ride. Then he took an automobile to the police patrol wagon, where he was taken to a neighbor, Julius Chase. During the struggle the two policemen were thrown to the ground, they tipped over a lamp stand and overturned a chair, called a fire department and police officers at the same time. O'Brien was released after five minutes' unkindness and Chase was released to the City Hospital, where he lies for a scalp wound cut on his right arm.

The police officer who was face surgery, laid down his 500k or good gun, and the other policeman waited for the collectors to return to their seats.

"Father," said O'Brien said: "We will pray for the dead," and his deep, resonant voice rang through the church.

There he encountered a meeting mob of fighting men and screaming women. He retreated. They hurriedly arrived and quieted the mob, going to the front of the church.

"I am here," he cried. Varasakos was lying sprawled in his seat, his head crushed. The crowd in the balcony shouted out Father Varafakes and Riekskas.

Where to Buy that Suit

That is a serious question with nearly every man. Is it to be a ready-made or a made-to-order suit? Think it over!

Naturally one wishes a suit to fit well. Even the poorest individual with the slightest ray of intelligence wants to dress his best.

The prime question then is answered for you. Now the material! When a tailor has a wide selection of fabrics, a man's own inclination rules his decision.

At Stewart the Square Tailor, a fit is guaranteed. Indeed, the slogan "A Stewart Suit is a Stylish Suit" is a household word in nearly every home in Los Angeles.

The material here is assured from domestic as well as foreign mills, hence the choice is varied and extensive. A saving is assured, too, on each suit made here which amounts to at least $20. Think of that! A perfectly fitted suit, choice material and twenty dollars saved.

Why not answer your suit question by having the next suit made at Stewart's big upstairs shop.

VOTING WILL COMPRISE ISSUE.

Liberals Are Showing Strength in Canada.

But None of Three Parties Has Majority.

Selection of Next Premier is Problem.

(REUTERS DISPATCH.)

TORONTO (Ont.), Oct. 2.—Who is to be the next Prime Minister of Canada? If election forecasts prove to be even approximately accurate, it is obvious the question is not to be answered by the ballot returns. The election will confuse rather than clarify the issue, will present rather than solve the problem. Such is the paradox of the electoral situation, unique in Canadian annals.

According to one frequently repeated forecast, the supporters of each of the three leaders will carry to the new House of Commons will be ranged thus:

Mackenzie King (Liberal) 94, Crear (Farmer) 75, Meighen (Conservative) 69.

Total 138. Who of the three, if any of them, will be able to carry on the government of the country?

MEIGHEN FACING TROUBLE. It is scarcely conceivable that Mr. Meighen will be able to continue. He could only do so by forming a coalition with one of the opposing groups. With the farmers coalition for him is out of the question. In the war Cabinet Mr. Crear was his colleague but he broke on the tariff question and Mr. Crear stepped out as soon as the war was over.

Can Mr. Meighen form an alliance with the Liberals; can he bring the two historic parties together under one banner as was partially accomplished during the war? Perhaps Mr. Meighen had some such idea in his mind when he stepped out according to power, made a "Bolshevist" speech, representing the farmer and labor movements as the enemies of the country, which all sane-minded men should unite to oppose.

So far, however, no Liberal has become so alarmed at this "bogey" as to fly to Mr. Meighen for protection. Canadian farmers are not Bolshevists and it would require some such menace to cause the burrowing of age-long party antagonisms.

SUCCESSOR IN DOUBT.

If Mr. Meighen cannot carry on and Lord Byng asks him, as retiring Premier, to recommend a successor, whom is he going to recommend? No doubt he will name the leader with the largest following. If Mr. King has ninety adherents and Mr. Crear seventy-five, Mr. Meighen will recommend Mr. King. If the figures are reversed, he will name Mr. Crear.

Will either of them, however, be able to form a government controlling a majority in Parliament? Will farmers support Mr. King? Will Liberals support Mr. Crear? In both instances there are grave doubts.

There are Liberals whom the farmers might be more likely to support than Mr. King. W. S. Fielding is mentioned in the connection. Mr. Fielding also is a protectionist and in his native Province is a friend of the steel industry but farmers will hold it to his credit that he negotiated the reciprocity agreement in 1911. Mr. Fielding, though, is 72 years old.

Another Liberal the farmers might support is Ernest Lapointe, the young French Canadian, who has taken Sir Wilfrid Laurier's place as French Canadian leader and also for Sir Wilfrid's constituency in East Quebec. Ostensibly the French Canadians are today solid block, but there is a wide divergence between the viewpoint of Sir Ernest Lapointe, the idealistic politician, Mr. Lapointe and Mr. Crear are warm friends, and it may be that Mr. Crear could deliver to Mr. Lapointe the support of his following.

CREAR WILL NOT ACCEPT. As for Mr. Crear, common report is that he will in no circumstances accept the task of being Premier. He is, however, young, in public affairs and the taste for high office may be developing faster than his reputation for wisdom.

The thing that would hasten an alliance between the conservatives and the Liberals would be a farmer government. Many Liberals from the other provinces and even from Quebec might support a farmer government with closer conscience, but to the French Canadian protectionist, who finds his inspiration in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the western farmer is a terrible menace. Such a development would undoubtedly land Canada back into a two-party system with conservatives on one side and protectionists on the other. Some regard such a sequence of events as inevitable.

On the present forecast, which gives the largest individual group to the Liberals, it would look as though the most likely next Premier is Mr. King, but the field is so large and so mixed that he is not better than a 5 to 1 shot.

NEW HEAD OF ENGINEERING COUNCIL HAS IMPORTANT PROGRAM PLANNED.

(REUTERS DISPATCH.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Under Dean Mortimer E. Cooley of the University of Illinois, the Federal Engineering Council, headed by Herbert Hoover as president of the American Engineering Council of the Federal Government, will be carried out a program of national service.

Government reorganization, employment, expansion of the federal system of regional lines reaching into every State, establishment of a Federal Engineering Council, and the elimination of waste in industry were among the problems facing the reorganization, executive secretary, announced yesterday, following sessions of the executive board of the council held here yesterday.

Establishment of a Federal department of public works, relief for the unemployed, and the creation of government contracts, and greater provision for the employment of engineers among the immediate objects sought.

The World Today

This article on bank debts in Los Angeles as compared with the United States, prepared by the Research Department of The First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, will be of more than ordinary interest to the delegates attending the American Bankers' Association Convention in Los Angeles this week as well as the residents of this city.

There are several indices of the tendency of business which are closely studied by all having an interest in economic conditions. What is termed "bank debts" is one of these indices; bank clearings, railroad earnings, and the production of pig iron are other indices of the trend of business and industry.

A bank debt means a debit or charge that is entered in the book-keeping account of a customer of a bank, and thus represents a withdrawal of money by that customer. The plural term, bank debts, is used to mean the total of such amounts for all the banks of the city, and since these charges represent money that the population of a city and necessary to use in their trade and business relations, bank debts are accepted as an excellent index to the condition of the business of a city, or of a district, or of the nation as a whole.

The accompanying chart is a study made by the Research Department of The First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, which gives a comparison of the bank debts, or business condition, of the city of Los Angeles and the rest of the United States as represented by 154 cities.

By observing the sharp ascent of the heavy, solid line representing Los Angeles, a definite idea can be obtained of the rapid development of this city since January, 1919. The chart reflects the remarkable growth that has taken place in all lines, and shows that contrary to the depressed state of the rest of the United States, this city has, during the recent months, not only retained the gain of the last two years, but has continued this growth.

The rest of the United States, on the other hand, shows a period of increasing depression. The chart is based on the average weekly total of bank debts for every month since January, 1919. The lowest average for the United States is that of August, 1921, which amounted to $6,680,000, as compared to the peak in November, 1919, amounting to $16,537,000,000.

In Los Angeles, the month with the largest total was December, 1920, of $126,200,000. Since that time there has been no decrease, in the sense of a steady decline as has been the case in all sections of the United States. December, 1920, was a record-breaking month for Los Angeles, and on the chart stands out quite prominently in relation to the months of 1921.

Nevertheless, it will be observed that practically all the months of 1921 have shown increases over those respective months of 1919 and 1920. In other words, the phenomenal development of this city industrially, financially and commercially, still continues. This growth of Los Angeles as reflected on the chart by the heavy line, as compared with that of the United States, represented by the broken line, is striking.

Prospect as to the future are hazardous. However, in the case of Los Angeles the accomplishments have been so tremendous at a time when all other parts of the country have been experiencing business depression, that it would seem that with more favorable conditions the future of Los Angeles could readily and easily be foretold.

JUDGE WHO REVERSED LANDIS DIES

Peter S. Grosscup, Formerly of Chicago, Succumbs Suddenly While at Sea.

(REUTERS DISPATCH.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Cable advices from London last night announce the death of former Federal Judge Peter S. Grosscup aboard the steamship Caronia at sea several days ago.

As United States Circuit Court judge for thirteen years, Judge Peter Stengel Grosscup became a national figure. He wrote the finding of the Circuit Court of Appeals when it reversed the $19,450,000 fine imposed by Federal Judge J. M. Landis on the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Judge Grosscup was born at Ashland, N. H., Feb. 13, 1852. He was admitted to the bar in 1874, and practiced in his home town until 1882, when he came to Chicago. President Harrison, ten years later, made him a United States district judge.

It was Judge Grosscup who sent the famous telegram to President Cleveland in 1904 asking for Federal troops to put down the riot of railroad strikers. He later sent Eugene Debs and some of his associates to jail for contempt.

In 1909 President McKinley appointed him to the circuit bench. While there he served in a number of spectacular cases; he was best known in Chicago because of his handling of traction litigation.

He was criticized for raising his secretary, Marshall E. Sampson, from a $1500 a year salary to the position of receiver of the Union Traction Company at $18,000. In 1907 he was indicted with Sampson and other members of the board of directors of the Madison and Charleston Interurban Railroad Company, in connection with an intricate real estate deal, and nine years later the indictment was quashed.

IMPEACHMENT DEMANDED. At the request of the Chicago Federation of Labor, Congressmen Sabbath in March, 1919, introduced a resolution in Congress demanding the impeachment of Judge Grosscup for his decisions in labor cases, but "nothing came of it."

Judge Grosscup started his judgeship in cooperation of that year by appointing a new judge to replace him in the Federal bench. Then came the sinister rumors that the judge had been investigated for a former secret agent who was said to have been in the employ of a national "black" group.

"I will not resign now," said Judge Grosscup when he was asked to resign until these charges, whatever they may be, have been presented—and disproved. I won't resign under fire."

Then, in October, 1911, Judge Grosscup resigned. There was a time, during the Roosevelt administration, when the judge had hopes of being promoted to the United States Supreme Court, but because he had been the storm center of the controversy caused by the long-delayed traction settlement, President Roosevelt refused to consider the appointment.

Once in a while we understand friend or family through the sharp light of a powerful piece of fiction

For such vigorous and revealing fiction, over 2,000,000 families are going to a woman's magazine!

WHEN one woman walked, with a clear conscience, out of the front door, and actually left a good husband and three babies—in order to find her own soul—countless husbands sat up bewildered and gave thought.

Wives, mothers, daughters quivered—then thrilled at the new understanding of their own possibilities.

A piece of fiction!—Nora's action in Ibsen's "Doll's House" had shaken violently men's and women's comfortable assumptions. Affected profoundly the thoughts and actions of an entire generation.

When Brieux flung full in the face of the world his "Damaged Goods," tens of millions of women stared wide into each others' eyes. When Shaw flashed his "Getting Married" upon a scandalized society, he clarified for thousands of men and women, married or about to be married, their own ideas and attitudes regarding marriage.

Do magazines realize the power of fiction which illuminates so startlingly our deepest problems? Have any of them guessed the strength of its following?

Women—the demanders of vigorous fiction

YEARS ago, all women's magazines were blandly offering their readers mere "stories" as a complement to the more helpful household and needlework pages.

Then Pictorial Review boldly stepped out of the ranks. It was the first to print a novel not written down to a supposedly immature public. A novel stripped of sentimentality. Free of compromise with the conventional requirements.

From that day on, Pictorial Review has had an assured following, on account of the character of its fiction. A steady, continually increasing number of women have learned to look to Pictorial Review for fiction that actually vivifies. It is the vindication of Pictorial Review's belief that women are the most discriminating readers of fiction.

Four novels now being widely discussed were first printed in Pictorial Review

DURING the past year, Pictorial Review gave to its readers the first opportunity to read four of the season's best sellers and much discussed novels. Every one of them had a special meaning.

Edith Wharton's "Age of Innocence" is being read by millions for its sharp contrast between the insincerities and cramping restrictions of the generation that preceded us and the sincerities and freedom of our own day.

Booth Tarkington's "Alice Adams" draws reader after reader to its pages for its pitiless picture of the heart of a girl such as we are constantly meeting.

Joseph C. Lincoln's "Galusha the Magnificent," whimsical and heart-warming, and Kathleen Norris's "Beloved Woman," a searching study of family indulgence, touched widely differing points of response. In the current issue, Corra Harris's "Eyes of Love" throws light on perplexities that beset young couples of today.

IN short stories, the field in which American writers excel, Pictorial Review has on three separate occasions been accorded first rank among popular magazines. On the newsstands today is the October issue, in which eight masters of the short story, whose rank is high on both sides of the Atlantic, light up the life that is around us.

Each of these stories deals vividly with our own civilization, our dreams, or the situations we have actually to meet.

Such fiction wins an assured and loyal following. To meet its demand Pictorial Review is printing 2,100,000 copies of its October issue.

PAY HONORS TO BEAR ATHLETES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Members of the University of California 1921 track team and crew who won honors on the Pacific Coast and in the East last spring will be guests of honor at a luncheon to be given here tomorrow by university friends and alumni.

The track team won the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America meet at Harvard University and the crew placed second in the big intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie.

Dr. David P. Barrows, president of the university, and Dean F. Probert of the faculty will speak at the luncheon and appear in a San Francisco drive for funds for the million-dollar stadium to be built on the campus.

Football Season Promises Bitter Struggles.

Indiana Has a Chance to Wallop Harvard.

And Chicago May Put Skids Under Princeton.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL. (Exclusive Rights.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Featured by the 41-to-0 victory of Chicago over Northwestern, defeat of Purdue by Wabash, 9 to 6, and Harvard's 4-to-0 triumph over Holy Cross, results of last Saturday's football games plainly showed the season will be featured by bitterly fought struggles in which Indiana must be given a chance to win from Harvard next Saturday and Chicago from Princeton on October 15, in two of the most important intercollegiate contests of the year.

While the Maroons were expected to win from the Purple, their one-sided victory shows the team to be one of great possibilities. The men performed more creditably in their opening game than any other eleven in the Western Conference. They got into the plays with a smoothness which augured well for success in later games, while the defense was the surprising feature.

Northwestern now appears to be destined for a poor season. The Purple will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis next Saturday and Wisconsin at Evanston on October 15. Coach McDevitt may pull his men together, make a few changes to bolster up weak points and place teams on the field which will make good showings against the Badgers and Gophers.

Purdue's defeat by Wabash, 9 to 6, is a hard blow to followers of Notre-Dame athletic fortunes. Conditions appeared better at Lafayette with the coming of William Dietz as football mentor, but the miserable exhibition of fumbling given by the players is something which cannot be blamed on the coach.

Michigan, which will be a strong contender for Big Ten honors, had little trouble to win from Mt. Union, 44 to 0. The Wolverine did not have the opposition expected, but they executed their formations in a manner which made the miserable exhibition of fumbling given by the players is something which cannot be blamed on the coach.

Ohio State is met at Ann Arbor on October 15. The Michigan defense as a whole was good and will improve in another two weeks.

Wisconsin took Lawrence into camp, 28 to 0. The Badgers showed a bad tendency to fumble, which will be eradicated when more important games are played.

ONE-SIDED. Iowa swamped Knox, 82 to 14, after a one-sided struggle. The Hawkeyes used an open attack, varied occasionally by line plunging and driving through the line and off the tackles.

Indiana engaged in its last struggle before it takes the field against Harvard next Saturday. The Hoosiers, which scored 19 to 0 against Kalamazoo, 19 to 0, showed an improvement in team play at times, but there are still some faults which must be corrected, such as the interference and a better following of the ball.

Minnesota showed strong possibilities by winning from North Dakota, 19 to 0. Arnold Cas, one of the best backs in the West, showed he will be a factor in Gopher games by his brilliant work. Coach Williams has better material than last year, but his worth will not be definitely known until Ohio is met on October 15.

Ohio State, last year's Big Ten champion, won its opening contest by defeating Ohio Wesleyan, 28 to 0. The game gave Coach Wiles the opportunity to use a number of his men in action, with the result that he is satisfied as to what his regular line-up will be.

thirty after Sacramento had scored the first run. McGraw stopped the visitors, but went to places in the seventh, when the Solons scored four on two doubles. McGraw and Compton, a passed ball, a pair of hit batsmen and a wild pitch on which two counted.

True to tradition, Wheeler Dell pitched and won the closing game, 4 to 1. With an eye on second place, the Solons fought to the finish, Rodgers throwing in four pitchers. That's the old stuff that leaves a good taste.

Realizing the possibility of further rain, Sacramento started early. Jupiter Pivius has been causing the Solons a lot of trouble, and the Solons is believed to be a left-hander. Marty McGaffigan mowed open the pastime with a double. Bill Rodgers spoke to Merlin Kopp, and is believed to have told him to bust. Kopp followed instructions by busting a double to deep right center, and McGaffigan coasted in with a large gob of mud adhering to each heel. Mollwitz sacrificed, and Kopp was held at third while Seider was throwing out Pick, but Ryan helped Kopp over the waterproof rubber with a single to center. Compton popped the ball into the air, rather than washing it into the mud, and Seider caught the pure and undefiled pill.

FAITH SKIDS. Faith faced the opposition more effectively in the second, but in the third his skid chains failed to hold. He wiffed McGaffigan and passed Kopp, who with a long, graceful, slushy slide, stole second, and took third when Mollwitz hammered one down too hot for Smith to handle. The heat of the hit and the dampness of the ground made the pill steam, and everybody expected to see Mr. Smith's hands blow up under this heavy head of steam. Pick adopted the system of the ostrich with his head in the sand when fighting with its back to the barn. That is, he adopted this system with variations. First, he had to use mud instead of sand. Then he revolted at sticking his head in the mud. So instead, he stuck the ball in the mud just in front of the plate. He was at first by the time Murphy excavated the pill. When Spud came up with the ball he imagined he had a potato right out of the hill. And he threw the ball uphill over Hyatt. Kopp coasted. Mollwitz and Pick, still clinging to the potatoes, were brought to port on a double by Ryan. Faith then went into dry dock, and had the mud scraped from his propeller. McGraw then paddled in and sank the enemy for the time being.

Efforts to dry-clean the wet grounds were only partially successful, but after much effort they were made as inviting as a hog wallow, which was some improvement, as before this treatment they looked no better than a playground for hippopotami. Ed Schallmo, the faithful ground keeper, removed much of the water by dipping it up with a sponge and squeezing it into a bucket. As there were a million gallons of water on the field, and Schallmo had only a pint sponge, he had a very busy afternoon.

A MUD PIE. Bawdust was scattered on the field like frosting on a meringue mud pie, after which it was saturated with gasoline and burned. Thus we had a forest fire right in the heart of the city, this saddest having been a forest before the noble redwood trees were run through a nutmeg grater. Trips growing in the field appeared benefitted by the rain, and about ready to cut. This, it was believed, would fire the Tigers with ambition. Bill Rodgers hated to see all this rain water bailed out of the park and thrown over the fence. He felt that it should be saved, and made into wash water, which could be done by stirring in dirty clothes until it came to a thick boil. Then sweeten same with soft soap, give it the desired

LOS ANGELES NATION'S FASTEST GROWING CITY.

Over Twenty-five Thousand Building Permits Issued in Nine Months; Fifty-four Millions Spent.

This city's phenomenal construction progress is evidenced by these facts given out yesterday by the department of buildings:

Los Angeles is growing faster than any American city has ever grown.

Los Angeles today leads the entire United States in the extent of uninterrupted construction activities.

Los Angeles has been surpassed this year only by New York City and Chicago in the number of building permits issued and the valuation of the structures built.

GODOWSKY GIRL MARRIES MAYO.

Composer's Daughter Elopes With Film Director.

Screen Man Won Divorce Last Week; Wife Fought Suit.

Pair Will Make Temporary Home With Musician.

According to reports received here last night, Frank Mayo, motion picture director, and Miss Dagmar Godowsky, film actress and daughter of Leopold Godowsky, well-known composer, were married yesterday in Tijuana, Mexico.

Miss Dagmar Godowsky, sister of Dagmar, admitted last night that her parents had received a telegram announcing the wedding, and that the newlyweds were expected home from San Diego by auto before dawn.

A singular feature connected with the reported wedding is the fact that Mr. Mayo was granted a divorce from his first wife, Mrs. Joyce E. Mayo, by Judge Toland in this city Thursday.

Mr. Mayo is a director at Universal City, said to be earning $400 a week. Dagmar Godowsky has been appearing in Universal films for about three years and has just finished a picture as leading lady for Lon Chaney.

The Mayos were in local courts five times before the husband was finally granted a decree upon the ground of mental cruelty. Mrs. Mayo first filed suit for separate maintenance, then to compel payment of deferred temporary alimony.

In one of her suits Mrs. Mayo charged that her husband was spending money lavishly on other women, particularly Dagmar Godowsky. The latter's reply to this was a $15,000 libel suit. Mrs. Mayo finally dropped the suit against her husband and Miss Godowsky had her suit dismissed.

In defending one action in which his wife wanted $150 a week alimony, Mr. Mayo told the court that he couldn't stand such an expense because it was necessary for him to buy a new suit every three weeks. He complained that his wife was paying $40 a week for residence at a Hollywood hotel.

Last night Miss Godowsky stated that the newlyweds would reside at the Godowsky home for a while at least.

HOLD UP OF OIL STATIONS.

Four oil stations were held up and robbed by three men operating in a Ford automobile within forty-five minutes last night. J. V. Campbell reported that his place at 2409 South Figueroa street had been robbed of $85; E. J. Godwin, 4451 South Figueroa street, lost $250 and two pay checks of $68.75 each; E. A. Francis was robbed of $40, and A. C. Lackey of the Standard Oil station at 818th and San Pedro streets, $25.

BANKERS ARE WELCOMED.

Attend Barbecue Luncheon, See Films Made; Committee Sessions to be Held Today.

For the entertainment of 2000 visiting bankers, the mysteries of the silver screen were revealed yesterday when, through an arrangement made by Melville H. Flint, vice-president of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, chairman of the local entertainment committee, the Brunton studios were thrown open to the delegates.

For the entertainment of the visiting bankers, their wives and other guests, scenes were set and actual motion pictures made, scenes that later will be shown on the screen in various releases now being prepared at the Brunton studios.

From noon until 3 p.m. a barbecue luncheon was served on stage No. 6 of the studio, while a group of Spanish dancers and singers entertained the delegates with the famous "Three Musketeers."

Almost directly from the luncheon the delegates, upon receipt of their tickets of admission, were taken to the Grand Central Garage where more than 1000 automobiles were in waiting, and, after being driven through the Wilshire district and the residential districts of the city, were taken to the Brunton studios.

Here Chairman Flint had placed a corps of guides, recruited not only from the studios themselves, but from the junior officers of the various banks of the city. These guides conducted the visitors through all departments, including Mary Pickford's cottage dressing-rooms. Buster Keaton's company was one of the principal groups working on the stages.

The visitors were taken through the studio grounds, a corps of pages from the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, dressed in Spanish costume, presented each of the visitors with a souvenir booklet covering the financial side of the motion picture industry, with the compliments of Merrill Lynch and Company. The booklet was prepared by John E. Barber, vice-president of the First Securities Company, and pointed out that the American motion picture industry not only leads the world, but also drew last year $167,000,000 into the box office of 16,000 theaters of the United States.

Rev. Robert Freeman of Pasadena will deliver the invocation at the opening of the State banking section meetings today.

This statement also outlined the methods by which a motion picture is produced, the classified costs of a typical feature, including salaries, scenarios, wardrobe and other expenses, and showed that a typical

OFFICIAL COUGAR HUNTER.

To be paid a regular salary by the Federal government for killing wild animals because it was found more expedient to give him the regular bounties in the recognition of his prowess as a hunter.

Armed with hundreds of traps of various sizes, Skiff will start into the foothills east of Auburn, where his work will begin. He was loath to leave the Lewis county mountains where he has trapped for the last eleven years, he says, but a salary increase by the Federal government resulted in the change. Incidentally Skiff is master of the art of trapping and is not paid by the bounty system, because the government found that method too expensive in his case. He receives a salary the year round.

John's reply so facetiously that we have to leave it to the reader. John spends all of his spare time carving in wood. By spare time I mean the time that is not given over to the profession of doing nothing. "I just sit and whittle," he declares. "I use an idle man to talk very fast. I use soft pine for my cutting. Hard woods are too much work."

He drew from his pocket an ordinary clasp knife with which he did his carving. The blade was so keen that it seemed to cut the sunlight. Then he led us into his house, a three-story wooden structure. The place was a chaos of odds and ends. It made us think of some universal storehouse where all the things of the world are piled up. There were every conceivable kind of furniture from candlesticks to chairs, boxes, trunks, stoves, hardware, squares of wood, ship rigging, stuffed animals, lanterns—almost everything to be found on earth.

WHITTLES DUCK MODELS. But John is particularly interested in ducks. Duck decoys and duck models are his specialty. He has a large collection of duck decoys and duck models. He has a large collection of duck decoys and duck models. He has a large collection of duck decoys and duck models.

They took it as it came, planning to do more important things later on. The boy who will not work with his hands, even if such work offers the best opportunity of advancement, may never wear overalls, but neither will he ever do any of the important work of the nation."

Working in co-operation with the King county game commission, Skiff will begin the task of ridding the mountainous sections of this county of cougars, bobcats, coyotes and other wild animals that prey upon deer, cattle or sheep.

By spare time I mean the time that is not given over to the profession of doing nothing. "I just sit and whittle," he declares. "I use an idle man to talk very fast. I use soft pine for my cutting. Hard woods are too much work."

He drew from his pocket an ordinary clasp knife with which he did his carving. The blade was so keen that it seemed to cut the sunlight. Then he led us into his house, a three-story wooden structure. The place was a chaos of odds and ends. It made us think of some universal storehouse where all the things of the world are piled up. There were every conceivable kind of furniture from candlesticks to chairs, boxes, trunks, stoves, hardware, squares of wood, ship rigging, stuffed animals, lanterns—almost everything to be found on earth.

WHITTLES DUCK MODELS. But John is particularly interested in ducks. Duck decoys and duck models are his specialty. He has a large collection of duck decoys and duck models. He has a large collection of duck decoys and duck models. He has a large collection of duck decoys and duck models.

Overall have been the first uniform of many successful men. "Abraham Lincoln wore them—when he was splitting rails on an Illinois farm. Thomas A. Edison, Edward Hurley, Charles M. Schwab, railroad presidents, bank presidents, even college presidents, have all known what hard manual labor means. None of them was ashamed of his work. They took it as it came, planning to do more important things later on. The boy who will not work with his hands, even if such work offers the best opportunity of advancement, may never wear overalls, but neither will he ever do any of the important work of the nation."

If you are ashamed of your job you will never get much out of it. Indolence is the worst enemy you have. If you are ashamed of your job you will never get much out of it. Indolence is the worst enemy you have.

Working in co-operation with the King county game commission, Skiff will begin the task of ridding the mountainous sections of this county of cougars, bobcats, coyotes and other wild animals that prey upon deer, cattle or sheep.

Armed with hundreds of traps of various sizes, Skiff will start into the foothills east of Auburn, where his work will begin. He was loath to leave the Lewis county mountains where he has trapped for the last eleven years, he says, but a salary increase by the Federal government resulted in the change. Incidentally Skiff is master of the art of trapping and is not paid by the bounty system, because the government found that method too expensive in his case. He receives a salary the year round.

John's reply so facetiously that we have to leave it to the reader. John spends all of his spare time carving in wood. By spare time I mean the time that is not given over to the profession of doing nothing. "I just sit and whittle," he declares. "I use an idle man to talk very fast. I use soft pine for my cutting. Hard woods are too much work."

BANKERS ARE WELCOMED.

to 6 p.m. today at the Ambassador. During the dancing another motion picture will be taken of the visiting bankers and their guests.

Throughout yesterday the registration rooms maintained by the association in the Alexandria and emulating forty registrars and clerks were packed with delegates. An elaborate record is kept regarding each arrival, so that his status in connection with the convention is easily established and his schedule while in the city is recorded for the benefit of all other delegates and local friends who may wish to get in touch with him.

Today will be devoted to committee meetings and social affairs, the general sessions of the gathering not opening until tomorrow. Most of the important committees will be called together today by their chairmen.

At the general session tomorrow morning in the Philharmonic Auditorium President Drum will deliver his speech on "Situation Today—a Country-wide Survey." This speech, based on questionnaires sent to every banking-house in the United States, will reflect the actual business conditions in all sections and in the nation as a whole and is regarded as one of the most important features of the day.

The exhibit of advertising literature, which is to be a feature of the convention gathering, will be shown in the ballroom of the Alexandria instead of on the mezzanine floor, as originally planned. The exhibit will be closed from 2 to 5 p.m. daily because of the meetings which will be held in the ballroom between these hours.

POUR IN BY TRAINLOADS.

All day long yesterday special trains and special cars, loaded with financiers from all parts of the United States, rolled into Los Angeles for the bankers' convention, were met by squads of local bankers composing the reception committee, were loaded into the hundreds of automobiles commandeered for the occasion, allocated to the various hotels of the city and their baggage delivered to their rooms.

The reception committee, under the chairmanship of John P. Burke, vice-president of the First National Bank, so divided its work that the three stations of the city were covered either by the committee as a whole or by subcommittees under the command of vice-chairmen of the reception committee, where duplicate train arrivals made division of forces necessary.

The entire committee met the three special trains bringing thirty-six carloads of bankers from Chicago, Iowa and Minnesota at 10:30 a.m., and their automobiles covered the entire parking-space at the station, overflowed into the freight-loading yards and the adjacent streets.

A subcommittee met the Milwaukee delegates at the Southern Pacific station at noon and at 5 p.m. Chairman Burke and his entire force met the three trains—thirty-five cars—of bankers from New York at the same station.

A few minutes later a subcommittee was assigned to meet an additional ten-car train of bankers, also from the New York territory, at the Santa Fe.

In addition, special flying squads of the committee met all trains at the various stations to greet the smaller groups and bankers and the special cars attached to most of the regular trains coming into the city.

One of the features of the day was the welcome given by the reception committee to probably the most important of its members—Miss Mary O'Neill, daughter of P. H. O'Neill, also a member of the committee.

Miss O'Neill, the only woman member of the committee, arrived on the Salt Lake at 10:30 a.m. with the contingent from Chicago, the Northwest and the Intermountain territory. She met these delegates in Salt Lake City and returned to Los Angeles with them, making full arrangements for their reception by wire.

TO BURY HERO TODAY.

Funeral Services Will Be Held for Claude C. Perdue.

Funeral services under the auspices of the American Legion will be conducted today at 1:30 p.m. for Claude C. Perdue, age 32 years, who was killed in action Oct. 1, 1918, in the Argonne, France. The funeral will be at the W. A. Brown Chapel and thence to St. Vibiana's Cathedral at 2:30 p.m. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. The dead hero was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Perdue, and in addition to the parents, he leaves five sisters, Mrs. John Downpour, Mrs. Mabel Simmons, Misses Agnes and Gladys Perdue, all of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Jennie Level of Fort Worth, Tex.

Oil, Mining, Trade and Financial

CHIEFS DUPE OIL STRIKERS.

That is Assertion of Writer in San Joaquin Field, Who Says Union Heads Aim at Communism.

BY DANIEL BOONE.

About three weeks ago, the union of oil workers, declared a strike against the oil operators in the San Joaquin Valley oil fields. Two large companies, the Standard Company of California and the Dutch Shell Company, and later, a third company, the Pan-American, were excepted from the strike for various reasons. The employees of the pipelines and refineries companies have not been called out to this date.

However, most of the companies in the San Joaquin Valley were affected. Except for the above mentioned companies and a few small and unimportant groups of wells, the oil fields are shut down.

These great oil fields lie on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley extending about 160 miles from north to south and the wells are grouped about Coalinga in Fresno county, Lost Hills, Belridge, the Great Sunset-Midway-21st Hills, grouped around Taft, and the Kern River. Except that the Kern River field is near Bakersfield, this country is a desert and oil is its only industry. The little towns are oil towns, surrounded by deserts and derricks. If it were not for oil there would be no towns nor population. The oil fields are a string of islands in a desert sea and every inhabitant is there directly or indirectly because of oil.

NO NEUTRALITY. When such a community is rent by civil discord, the whole population is involved. Whether they wish it or not, all must take sides. There can be no neutrality. "Under which flag" is the question in the eyes of the tongue when neighbor meets neighbor.

The strike is felt more than seen. There have been no fires, no destruction of property. At headquarters camps a few clerks and field officials seem to be busy. In his office, his hand ready for the telephone, the superintendent of a large company sat and talked to me.

"Anything new?" I asked. "Not just now," he said. "We are still pumping at station 10 this morning. They pulled off the Ajax Company's pump at their oil station last night, though."

"Kidnap him as they did Murphree?" "No, he just could not stand it any longer, and they took him in. I'll go crazy sitting here listening for the phone. Sometimes wish it would 'break' and be started."

ROADS EVERYWHERE. The fields are criss-crossed by innumerable roads. Roads are easy to make in the desert. All the most traveled roads, the highways and important road crossings, have been guarded day and night by armed strikers. Shotguns and rifles stand against their automobiles; they all have automobiles, for nobody walks in the oil fields. In a ride of two or three miles you would pass from three to ten groups of wayward guards. At night if you refused to stop you were likely to be shot at. This happened several times, though only one man was hit.

No stranger came into the fields—the coming was made too disagreeable. The towns have been quiet, but anxious. On the streets everybody has looked intently at everybody else. Around the buildings used as union headquarters there always is a crowd of men.

STRIKERS' DEMANDS. Their sacred cause may be called "Government Supervision of Contracts." They demand that the operators sign a wage agreement, on virtually the operators' own wage terms, not with the union, but with a government representative. The union will then sign a similar agreement with the same government agent and that is all. They promise that, for the term of this agreement (one year) all its terms will be lived up to by the men, just as they have in the past, and that peace and production will result.

The operators will not sign such an agreement, and the year. Their desire is to do business without government control. Their slogan is "Let government get out of business and more business in government," and it is this simple difference of ideas as to the proper functions of government that has created the astonishing and alarming situation.

UNION ORGANIZED. In 1915 and 1916 it became evident that organizers were forming a union among the oil workers of California. This industry before had never been unionized. It was not itself to union ideas. It is an individualistic business, which cannot be standardized and which requires, for the solving of its many different problems, men of imagination and initiative. This business is carried on by many crafts—steamfitters, drillers, woodworkers, pumpers, truck drivers, electricians and a host of others. The typical oil man is always ambitious to be a producer in his own account. He holds himself above the ordinary laboring man—and he is.

It was necessary from the organizer's viewpoint, to form an industry union, and as this was a somewhat new thing the union at first grew slowly.

In 1917 with the rising cost of living as a basis of complaint, and in spite of voluntary rises of pay by most operators, the union became strong enough to force a meeting between its own leaders and some of the operators before V. E. Reed, who was sent out as a government mediator. This meeting took place at Santa Barbara and it was agreed among other things that the minimum wage should be $4 a day in the oil fields and that the eight-hour day should be put into effect. The largest oil company in California had previously introduced the eight-hour day, other large companies had decided upon it and it undoubtedly would have been adopted shortly in any event. This meeting before V. E. Reed in 1917 was the first step on the road to government control and, in the minds of the labor leaders, toward government and eventually communistic ownership of the oil fields.

ANNUAL MEETING. Each year after the Santa Barbara meeting, similar meetings took place before a government commission, and after wages and working conditions were agreed upon, a contract was signed by both parties with the government men. Each year this contract became larger and more detailed, and more intricate. Each year the government as mediator and ultimate controller came more and more into prominence.

This was, of course, according to plan, the idea of the union leaders being to place the operators in such a position that every question of wages, promotion, efficiency and the general conduct of the business should be submitted first to union committees and then to a government agent for decision. Business men know how fatal this condition is to efficiency and honest dealing between employer and employee. They know from the experience of the railroads, and the oil operators know that the step from government control to communistic ownership and then to communism is the ultimate aim of the leaders of the oil workers' union.

WARTIME STRESS. I have said that some of the oil operators, unwillingly it is true, and under wartime stress and possibly with a mistaken sense of patriotic duty, took the first steps along this road two years ago. Back in 1917. Not all of them did by any means, in fact not half of the oil produced in California had been subject to this government contract control—and, of course, only a very small percentage of that produced in America, probably about 10 per cent. Yet the union leaders did secure their ends. They now assert that peace and efficiency in the oil fields is impossible without it, whereas 10 or 50 per cent of the industry has never had it, and there was never a shadow of strife in the oil fields until it was introduced.

It seems incredible that at a time of great unemployment and with a time when stocks of oil are very large and the price falling, the best paid and most fortunate situated workers in America should strike. A wage cut of $1 a day had been announced by a great many operators to be effective September 1. This wage reduction still leaves the best wage for roustabouts and oil fields at $3 a day. This was acceptable to the men—they freely admit it. Hours and working conditions were to remain the same; there was no complaint about that. The shop or grievance committees were to remain.

SINGLE DISPUTE. The one and sole point of difference between the men and the operators is the signing or not signing of the new wage scale for a yearly period before a government representative. In other words, no material difference will be felt by the men, but the vital step necessary to eventual government ownership or communism will be missing if such a paper is not signed. And so determined are the leaders of the men to win this vital step that they are willing to call a desperate strike at the worst possible time, from the men's point of view and throw thousands of well-paid men into a world already burdened with unemployment.

There is no material or immediate threat to the country.

Federal Land Bank 5% Bonds

Dated May 1, 1921

Due May 1, 1941

Not redeemable before May 1, 1931

Interest payable May 1 and November 1 at any Federal Land Bank or Federal Reserve Bank. Principal payable at the Bank of issue. Coupon and registered bonds (interchangeable) in denominations of $10,000, $5,000, $1,000, $500 and $100. Redeemable at par and interest at any time after ten years from date of issue.

The Supreme Court of the United States has held, (a) that these Banks were legally created as part of the banking system of the United States, and (b) that the Bonds issued by the Banks are instrumentalities of the United States Government and are exempt from Federal, State, municipal and local taxation.

Issues of outstanding bonds dated prior to May, 1921, are redeemable five years from the date of issue. In order to meet the demand for longer term securities, Congress enacted a statute authorizing the redemption period on new issues to begin in the eleventh year from date of issue instead of in the sixth as heretofore. The Bonds now offered are issued under this authority.

Special attention is directed to the following Statement of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon:

"In view of the very satisfactory financial condition of the Banks themselves, of the exemption of the bonds issued by these Banks from Federal, State, municipal and local taxation everywhere in the United States, and of the very adequate security back of these Bonds, they should prove an attractive security to investors large and small through the country."

Acceptable by Treasury: These Bonds are acceptable by the United States Treasury as security for Government deposits, including Postal Savings Funds.

Legal for Trust Funds: They are lawful investments for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction of the United States Government. They are eligible under the laws of many of the States for investment of all public and private funds, and have been officially held eligible for investment by savings banks in the following States:

|            |               |                |                |               |

The United States Government owns over $6,500,000 of the capital stock of the Banks and the United States Treasury has purchased over $183,000,000 Federal Land Bank Bonds. The Banks themselves are under the direction and control of the Federal Farm Loan Board, a Bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States Government.

Merger of Railroads and Consolidation of New York
Traction Lines Cause Comment.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Two major attempts to substitute a scientific, comprehensive plan for historical accidents in transportation schemes were made last week nationally and locally. Two days after the Interstate Commerce Commission made public its tentative program for combining all the railroads of the country into sixteen consolidated groups, Gov. Miller's transit commission revealed its suggestions for uniting the city's traction lines by means of municipal ownership.

Neither plan is on the point of Commerce Commission will start being translated into action. The New York program, however, seems much nearer fruition. Both are starting points for discussions rather than final sets of rules for action. The main point of similarity is the effort to be scholarly and to see the problem faced as a whole.

The first reaction in Wall street to the transit report was that it was favorable to bondholders and detrimental to stockholders. It is expected that the shareholders will be at the van of the opposition. Their interests should by no means be ignored, but for months the verdict of the market place has been that the value of their equities is slight indeed.

Naturally the student of railroad history, in perusing the voluminous Interstate Commerce Commission report on consolidations, based on the studies of Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard University, perceives, somewhat ironically, a public body advocating what a few far-sighted individuals, such as E. H. Harriman and James J. Hill, were striving to do two decades ago. Twenty years ago these exceptionally gifted railroad builders had visions of unions of great systems, but they were forced to operate in the face of public opposition. Perhaps the slowness of the people to accept this principle has been costly. But, aside from the tardiness, there is some advantage in having the scheme sponsored by a regulatory body and conceived by a man of science.

It is unlikely that the Interstate

These two documents far surpassed in interest the fluctuations of security prices. Speculative issues vacillated, and the end of the week net changes were negligible. Activity contracted, after a month of rising quotations. The last six days represented an interlude. In the investment market, where fundamental credit conditions indicate further upturns of quotations, the rise was checked by a great outpouring of new issues.

Against the grayness of the domestic markets, the somersaults of the German mark, which tumbled to the low level in history, stood out conspicuously. On Wednesday, marks were sold at .735 of a cent, compared to 23.5 cents the normal mint parity. A recovery later presented little more than the usual speculative rebound, based on a technical market position.

The decline was facilitated, if not caused, by tremendously heavy offerings from Berlin. It was reported that the German government was out of the market and that the offerings came from private sources. Speculators in Germany, anxious to keep up industrial security prices, which rose as the mark declined, deliberately tossed huge blocks of marks into the international market place to depress the mark. Fearful of the intrinsic worth of the mark, rushed to convert doubtful marks into stout American dollars. Private German balances here are understood to be up to the previous level.

Aside from these immediate influences, the mark at its new depressed level, reflects the process of watering. While the printing presses in recent months continued to add to the sum total of paper notes outstanding, Germany depleted the already inadequate gold reserves in sympathy with exports at the time reparations payments were due. Meantime the wheels of German factories continued to whirl busily, and German exporters are digging their feet deeper into foreign trade.

particularly in South America. The falling value of the mark, however, is a danger signal, for Germany's economic life cannot remain undisturbed if the whole currency system should collapse. Each day, however, the European financial structure as a reality is becoming more visible, and the world is beginning to deal with realities, instead of theories. Politics abroad is giving way to economics.

International finance at present is interested primarily in two things. First, the ability of Germany to meet its reparations obligations. Germany last week was compelled, according to reports, to extend banking credits until November 15 which were due on September 15. Secondly, the economic relief which will result from the attainment at Washington next month of the disarmament conference from the attainment of a constructive tax program for reducing expenditures for things military.

Last week's investment market was called upon to absorb an unusually large volume of new financing. The aggregate of new issues offered for public subscription rose now well over $125,000,000, making it the most active week in this respect in a long time. Generally speaking, these new offerings were well taken, although it remains to be seen yet how well the securities have been placed with the ultimate investor. Indications are that the market has been temporarily congested so that it may take some time before dealers can clear their shelves.

Meanwhile, the market is likely to have a rest from the steady outflow of new financing, although a number of important operations are scheduled for the next few weeks.

Probably the most interesting piece of financing last week was the $10,000,000 Argentine government loan, a two-year 7 per cent commitment which was offered to investors on 7.15 per cent basis. This was business that had been in the making for many months. When Argentina first sought accommodation here the bankers proposed an 8 per cent coupon rate. That was nearly a year ago. The fact that the deal was finally closed with a 7 per cent coupon indicates the change that has taken place in the basis of the investment market.

Money was moderately easy in Wall street last week. Borrowers for stock exchange purposes were able to cover their needs at a rate of 5 to 5 1/4 per cent. Business was reported in commercial paper on a 6 1/2 to 6 per cent basis, although the general market is still above that level. All indications point to a continuance of the relatively cheap money. The heavy demands of the crop-moving season have been met by the banks without difficulty, as is shown by the position of the Federal reserve system, where steady progress is still being made toward a stronger reserve position as gold holdings increase and member bank borrowings decline. Bankers do not hesitate to say that the period of credit strain has definitely passed.

WAS FORMER MAYOR.

Founder of Minnesota Town Dies at Long Beach.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 2.—M. N. Leland, aged 73 years, died suddenly here today in his room in the Kenan hotel. He was missed from his usual haunts early in the day and this afternoon investigation disclosed that he had evidently gone to his room to his down soon after breakfast and died as the result of heart disease. Mr. Leland was the founder and former mayor of the town of Wajala, Minnesota and had been a member of several sessions of the Minnesota legislature. In recent years he had lived in Minneapolis but has spent his last several winters in Long Beach. One of several children who survive is Mrs. Virginia Eklund, of Santa Monica who will accompany Mr. Leland to the funeral, starting tomorrow afternoon.

A Message to Bankers

BECAUSE we are so closely identified with Banking—and because the vicissitudes of the last year have been reflected in our transactions as well as in yours—we feel we may be permitted to join with you in rejoicing over what we all profoundly trust is the approaching end of the most trying period in the history of American business.

Perhaps we may be permitted also to observe, that during a time in which the Banks have won their way through unprecedented difficulties, Corporate Suretyship, too, has given a good account of itself. The extent to which Corporate Suretyship has averted embarrassment and sometimes disaster, emphasizes its importance as one of the stabilizers of the business structure.

Naturally we are gratified to have been in some small degree a partner with Banking in keeping the ship of finance on an even keel. We are gratified likewise at the confidence indicated by the increase of our business with Banks during the year. It is on account of our desire to continue to merit such confidence that we will announce to-morrow a form of bank insurance hitherto written by no American company.
